There is great deal of speculation on the future of China Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) not only in Pakistan but also in Gilgit Baltistan- the region that forms the crucial land link between China and Pakistan. Gilgit Baltistan is salient to a connectivity project like CPEC. However, there is widespread uncertainty amongst people in the region regarding their actual stakes in the Chinese helmed multibillion project. While Islamabad has time and again stressed how CPEC will benefit Gilgit Baltistan economically, there is no sign to convey if the local population actually believes in these high sounding projections made by the government of Pakistan. As a report in the current issue indicates, people are holding serious grievances against Pakistan authorities for the prices that are being offered to those people in Gilgit Baltistan whose land is being acquired for the purpose of building the corridor. Local people in fact offered stiff resistance against what they believe is unfair prices that is being given for their land and houses situated along the Karakoram Highway. Left without any option than to protest, people have reportedly warned the state apparatus that they would be forced to stall the construction work under CPEC if they were not adequately compensated as per existing market rates.

The reverberations of political tumult happening inside Pakistan has been increasingly felt in both parts of PoK. Post Nawaz Sharif's ouster after being held guilty in the Panama case, the PML-N (Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz) headed leadership in both parts of PoK has expressed loyalty towards their leader. There have been several instances of the PML-N leaders in PoK often appaluding how Nawaz Sharif has served the Kashmir cause by persistently raising the issue at international platforms including the United Nations. It is interesting to note that immediately after Nawaz Sharif was made to quit after being pronounced guilty, the prime minister of the so-called AJK, Raja Farooq Haider Khan, was hounded from all across for his reaction in which he scathingly noted that the so-called AJK may have to rethink its accession to Pakistan.

Jamil Nagri, “Journalist asked to appear before ATC”

Dawn, October 1, 2017

An Anti-Terrorism Court asked Shabbir Saham, an Islamabad-based journalist, to appear before it on October 7 for the hearing of a case registered against him for allegedly defaming some PML-N members of the Gilgit-Baltistan Legislative Assembly in a newspaper column. The notice sent by Judge Raja Shahbaz Khan warned Mr Saham of an ex parte decision if he did not attend the hearing. The Pakistan Federal Union of Journalists (PFUJ), the Rawalpindi Islamabad Union of Journalists and the National Press Club, Islamabad, have called upon the GB government to withdraw the case. Mr Saham, a resident of Skardu based in Islamabad, had written a story for the Daily Times in November 2017, which stated some members of the GB Legislative Assembly were involved in women trafficking from Gilgit-Baltistan for prostitution. The region’s government registered a case against the journalist, accusing him of fabrication. Later police carried out raids on Mr Saham’s residence in Islamabad.

“Oppressed Gilgit Baltistan residents will vote for India: Abdul Hamid Khan”

DD News, October 2, 2017

Chairman of the Balawaristan National Front (BNF), Abdul Hamid Khan, stated that the oppressed people of Gilgit Baltistan will vote in favour of joining India as they are fed up with Pakistan’s colonial rule. “There are only two options - either you can vote to India or you can vote to Pakistan. After the long 69 years of experience, the people of Gilgit Baltistan believe we are living under Pakistani occupation in a prison of 72,000 square kilometers (area). By keeping that in our mind, if we have only two options, we will not give our vote to Pakistan, we will vote for India” stated Khan, who lives in Belgium in political asylum. Criticising Islamabad for violating the UNCIP Resolution and for falsely framing political activists, religious persons and students of Gilgit Baltistan under the controversial anti-terrorist Act of Schedule IV, Khan stated access to justice is denied because there is no legal, constitutional high court or Supreme Court in the region. He claimed that the judicial system of Gilgit Baltistan is under Pakistan and its armed forces’ firm control. “Pakistan is the first country which violated the UNCIP resolution. If you are demanding a UN resolution, first you perform yourself, your obligation - you withdraw your forces from the area, and then, you can ask the United Nations to ask India to withdraw the bulk of its forces from that area. However, Pakistan is violating the rights of the people of Gilgit Baltistan.

“BSF camp attack: Terror is Pakistan’s policy, says Gilgit leader”

Outlook India, October 3, 2017

One of Gilgit Baltistan’s most influential leaders, who lives in exile in Brussels, Belgium, Abdul Hamid Khan, stated on October 3 that the terror strike on an Indian Border Security Force camp near Srinagar Airport early this morning has categorically confirmed that Pakistan is using terror as an instrument to not only create instability in neighbouring India, but also to subjugate the people of Gilgit-Baltistan who want nothing less than freedom. “Pakistan wants to intentionally change its demography by providing shelter to terrorists. It is also known to be providing weapons to them. The indigenous people of Gilgit Baltistan have no right to keep arms. And, if they are found carrying any weapon, they are put behind bars under the Terrorist Act. Pakistani citizens on the other hand are allowed to possess any kind of weapon. If any issue erupts, Pakistani citizens, who are working as ISI agents, can commit genocide on the people of Gilgit Baltistan. Our indigenous people are in danger”, claimed Khan. He squarely blamed Islamabad for using terrorists to create a divide among the people in the name of religion and sect. He noted, “After 1998, General Zia used the Mujahideen, the so-called terrorists which are today referred to as IS and Taliban, to attack the indigenous people of Gilgit Baltistan. They were mostly Shias.”

Addressing a press conference, they stated the district administration had issued notices to landowners to vacate their houses without any prior notice. They also stated that lands between Kas Pul and Chanjal areas along the Karakoram Highway were treated as commercial and thus, the government should pay them the market value of land and houses. The press conference was attended by members of CPEC action committee, including former DIG Riaz Khan, Maulana Atta Mohammad Deshani, Anwar Baig, Mohammad Rafique and Mohammad Khan along with CPEC-affected people. Murtaza Ali Shah, “AJK PM says Nawaz’s disqualification ‘damaged Pakistan’”

Geo TV, October 11, 2017

Prime Minister Azad Jammu and Kashmir Raja Farooq Haider stated that it’s an open secret now that former prime minister and PML-N leader Nawaz Sharif was disqualified on weak and unjustified grounds of Iqama [work permit] and not the Panama Papers. Speaking to the media, he noted Nawaz’s disqualification has been rejected by Kashmiris because it is a well-known fact now that his ouster has nothing to do with accountability and that it has damaged Pakistan. The AJK prime minister along with senior minister Tariq Farooq is visiting European capitals to apprise them about the human rights violations of Kashmiris. Haider noted that the case against Nawaz started on the basis of Panama but ended up on Iqama because no evidence of any kind of wrongdoing in public office was found against Nawaz. However, Iqama was used to oust him to ‘damage Pakistan’. The AJK premier noted that Kashmiris on both sides of the Line of Control (LoC) are suffering.

They noted that the comments of the US Defence Secretary were incendiary and that he spoke the language of India, the arch-rival of Pakistan. Speaking “Kashmiri activists hail U.S. Defence Secretary Mattis’ remarks on China-Pakistan Economic Corridor”

Outlook India, October 12, 2017

Kashmiri activists hailed the remarks by U.S. Defence Secretary James Mattis, who recently told the Senate Armed Services Committee that the China Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) was controversial as it passed through a disputed territory. The USD 56 billion CPEC project, which is part of China’s grand vision, known as the One Belt One Road (OBOR) initiative, passes through Pakistan’s northern areas, which India says is part of the undivided state of Jammu and Kashmir. Jamil Maqsood, Central Secretary, Foreign Affairs of the United Kashmir People’s National Party (UKPNP), noted, “We appreciate his (Mattis) statement that he has warned Chinese imperialists forces that they are crossing from a disputed territory.” While criticising Pakistan’s and China’s investment in Pakistan occupied Kashmir (PoK) and Gilgit-Baltistan, Jamil added, “They are diverting Neelum River near Muzaffarabad, which will have dire consequences for the water shortage in the lower areas, including the Muzaffarabad city. The United States should not only relay on the press statements, but they should take pragmatic steps to stop the Chinese and the Pakistani designs to colonise natural resources of the region. They are changing the demographics of the region.” The CPEC aims to connect Kashgar, in China’s western province of Xinjiang, with the port of Gwadar in the Pakistani province of Balochistan. The road and rail network under the project also traverses through Gilgit Baltistan, Khyber Phakhtunkhwa, Punjab, Sindh, before terminating in Balochistan.

Sardar Khalid Ibrahim Khan, an opposition member of the Azad Jammu & Kashmir Legislative Assembly, on October 13 demanded indiscriminate accountability of corrupt officials across the state. He was addressing a gathering of local lawyers hosted by Azad Jammu & Kashmir Supreme Court Bar Association. Sardar Khalid Ibrahim Khan, who also heads Jammu & Kashmir People’s Party, continued that the historical declaration of October 24, 1947 unequivocally and clearly determined the status and role of Azad Jammu & Kashmir as the base camp of the Kashmir freedom struggle. He stated we have to move ahead in the line of this historical declaration. He also stated that those involved in massive corruption, malpractices and irregularities in plundering the national assets during the previous and sitting AJK governments be brought to justice through an indiscriminate process of accountability to recover the digested public money and to deposit it to the public exchequer. Referring to the ongoing accountability process in Pakistan, the Kashmiri leader observed that the ongoing process of accountability could change the fate of the country if it was exercised with good and sincere faith.

Muhammad Ibrahim J., “Baltistan through my lens”

Dawn, October 14, 2017

The past couple of years have brought a positive boom in Pakistan’s tourism industry. This has predominantly been due to the massive increase in local tourism with Pakistanis venturing out and choosing to explore their own country. The likes of Murree, Naran and Hunza are closing in on their maximum capacity to facilitate tourism. However, one such region which is far from its tourism potential is Baltistan. I say this because Baltistan is a mystical land unlike any other, being blessed with crystal clear alpine lakes, quaint little mountainous towns, roaring rivers and towering snow-topped peaks. It is also notable for attracting a fairly appreciable number of local and foreign adventure seekers owing to the fact that it has 20 peaks with an altitude of over 20,000 feet! Apart from the road leading to Skardu, the administrative centre of Baltistan, there are regular flights as well between Islamabad and Skardu.

“Unfair taxation in GB”

Dawn, October 14, 2017

Once again, Gilgit-Baltistan’s business community is protesting against the taxes imposed on them, without an increase in their representation at the central decision-making level and without further empowering the GB government, which remains a ‘sub-federating unit’. And once again, they have a point. One of the taxes at issue is the withholding amount on bank transactions of non-filers of income tax returns, which has been a challenge since residents here are not required to file tax returns with the federal government. Each time they conduct bank transactions, an amount is deducted from their account and there is no remedy. This is only one example of the myriad costs imposed upon the citizens of these areas. The government can argue that most of the resources to fund the Rs54bn budget of GB comes from federal resources, as well as the Rs18bn development programme and the Rs3.3bn under the PSDP. But the fact of the matter is that these resources are paltry by comparison to the requirements of the area, especially given the heightened significance the region is going to acquire as CPEC makes headway. The region is the only overland entry point for the corridor, and the rapid pace at which the centre has committed funds for CPEC-related projects, such as the Gilgit-Shandoor road and the Gilgit-Jaglot road, shows that when its own interests are involved, the federal government can suddenly locate the funds and pass them off as being used for the benefit of the inhabitants of the area. But the real sentiments of GB's inhabitants were evident in the protest in Gilgit, launched from Skardu.

“969-MW Neelum Jhelum project begins filling reservoir”

Hydro World, October 17, 2017

The Pakistan Water & Power Development Authority (WPDA) begun filling the reservoir for the 969-MW Neelum Jhelum hydropower project. According to the utility, the project has completed constructing the 160-meter-long by 60-meter-high concrete gravity dam allowing reservoir impoundment that began with regulating closure of spillway gates. Water level will be raised at a rate of 1 to 3 meters per day, and WAPDA estimates it will take about a month to fill the reservoir. Total storage of the reservoir is 8,207 acre feet, up to the design reservoir operating level of 1,015 meter above mean sea level. After successfully filling the reservoir, the water will be diverted into the waterway system by the end of 2017. The project, estimated to cost more than US$4.5 billion, is part of a run-of-river scheme designed to divert water from the Neelum River to a powerhouse on the Jhelum River. The powerhouse is located in Azad Kashmir, 22 km south of Muzaffarabad, Azad Jammu and Kashmir. About 90% of the project is underground and will generate power using four 242.25 MW Francis turbines. The first unit is scheduled to go into operation by the end of February 2018 followed by the second unit in mid-March and the third and fourth units in April 2018. According to WAPDA, when completed, the project will provide annual revenues estimated at $769 million. In June 2016, HydroWorld.com reported that Neelum Jhelum has sparked controversy throughout its development-most notably due to conditions established between Pakistan and India by the 1960 Indus Water Treaty. With India developing its 330-MW Kishanganga project on the same waterway, the agreement dictates that whichever country completes its plant first will have priority rights to the river.

He made it clear that the government had no intention to induct political heads as administrators in the civic institutions in Azad Jammu Kashmir and instead the government was seriously contemplating to hold local bodies elections in AJK in December 2017.

Afzal Ali Shigri, “A new status for GB”

Dawn, October 24, 2017

Historically, Gilgit-Baltistan was designated as part of the princely state of Kashmir, but over the course of almost seven decades since Independence, the clamour for integration with Pakistan by GB residents has grown louder. At the time of Partition in 1947, the residents of this region struggled against the regular Kashmir state army to join Pakistan. However, the government of Pakistan, in view of the UN resolution for a plebiscite to determine the disputed status of the princely state, allied Gilgit-Baltistan with the territory. To date, the plebiscite has not taken place, and it is not likely to be held in near future either. Hence, the fate of GB hangs in what is effectively a constitutional limbo. In 2009, the PPP government took the first significant step towards self-rule for the area by creating a local Legislative Assembly, which was afforded limited powers for selected subjects of governance along with the semblance of a provincial administrative structure.

“Rubies, the buried treasures of Azad Kashmir”

Geo TV, October 15, 2017

The people of Azad Kashmir are sitting on a treasure chest: Millions of rubies, estimated to be worth up to half a billion dollars, are lying beneath them. But archaic tools and a lack of investment in infrastructure and techniques are hampering efforts to transform the area into a significant player in the gem industry. “We have rubies that are at least as good as the Burmese, but their mining techniques are more sophisticated”, noted Huma Rizvi, a dealer in precious stones. Kashmir has just one mine and one exploration site, where miners dig to assess the potential of the jewels below. But the region has proven reserves of more than 40 million grams of rubies, and inferred resources of nearly 50 million grams, according to geological surveys commissioned by the provincial executive. “Mining is done manually or by small blasts — and we lose 40 to 50 percent of the value of the stones,” he acknowledged. “Due to lack of investment, we are not making the most of our resources.” For Kashmir’s rubies and other mineral resources — such as copper, gold and silver — to contribute more to Pakistan’s economy, there must be more investment in local expertise and development of a legal framework to support the mining sector, dealer Rizvi noted. However, private firms are discouraged by the very rugged terrain and proximity to the Line of Control (LoC), the de facto border with India, where cross-border firings and scuffles are frequent. Even the major international mining companies are reluctant to invest in Pakistan, which has been plagued by legal disputes over major copper and gold concessions in the southwest of the country.

The Nation, October 7, 2017

“World leaders ask United Nations to play leadership card to resolve Kashmir conflict”

Outlook India, October 7, 2017

In a memorandum submitted to the secretary general of the United Nations, Antonio Guterres, the former prime minister of Azad Kashmir, Barrister Sultan Mehmood Choudhary, and the secretary general of the World Kashmir Awareness Forum, Dr. Ghulam Nabi Fai, urged the United Nations to play the leadership card in resolving the 70-year-old Kashmir conflict.

The memorandum read that the Kashmir conflict is perhaps the most dangerous conflict in the world, because of the spiralling nuclear and missile race between India and Pakistan, coupled with historical enmities that have occasioned three wars between the two rivals. “It is implausible to believe that these two neighbouring countries will either cap or renounce their respective nuclear genies after they have escaped the South Asian bottle unless the chief source of antagonism between the two - Kashmir - is resolved. It is obvious that no settlement can last if it is not based on justice for the people of Kashmir and recognition of their inherent rights,” the memorandum added. Dubbing the bilateral interaction between India and Pakistan to resolve the Kashmir issue as charades, the memorandum also read that a new negotiating formula is thus urgently required, in the name of international peace, security and human rights.

“CPEC violates rights of Gilgit residents, says Hague Centre for Strategic Studies”

The Economic Times, October 17, 2017

Europe’s leading think tanks have declared that the China Pakistan Economic Corridor or CPEC is violating the human rights of the people of Gilgit-Baltistan, a disputed territory over which the highway passes, and its construction is causing immense ecological damage to the region. Willem Oosterveld, a strategic analyst at the Brussels-based Hague Centre for Strategic Studies, noted, “There are certain international legal provisions for when you can or cannot build in occupied territory. But this as a case is not easy to compare with say Israeli settlements in Palestine,” adding that the CPEC does not conform to international law. Rights activists across Europe have roundly condemned the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC), which is being ruthlessly implemented against the will of the local population of Gilgit. Claudia Wädlich Heidelberg, a German activist and writer, noted, “China uses the OBOR (One Belt One Road) - economy to conquer strategic positions through Asia till Africa and Europe to gain world power. Democratic intentions and free world trade are not their goals.”

Zubair Torwali, “Preserving language”

The News, October 1, 2017

The government of Gilgit-Baltistan has been trying to chalk out a mechanism for the preservation and promotion of the languages spoken in the region. It has been working on this initiative for quite a long time now. To see how to proceed on the much needed proposal, the government of Gilgit-Baltistan recently invited heads of various language academies in other provinces along with language practitioners, academics, poets and writers for a two-day long consultation conference at the Karakoram International University. This is a task the concerned government must pursue, otherwise the cultural diversity of this knot of the three giant mountainous ranges – Himalaya, Hindukush and Karakorum – will vanish soon. Gilgit-Baltistan is a highly diverse region in terms of landscape, culture, languages and faith. The majority of the inhabitants of this spectacular region follow four denominations of Islam: Shiite, Sunni, Ismaili and Noorbakhshia. Linguistically, the region is one of the most diverse in the world. One particular issue needs attention. The languages of Gilgit-Baltistan do not have any script. The scripts for these languages are very recent. While Shina uses the Arabic script, Burushashki, Balti and Wakhi use other scripts as well.

“Make Gilgit-Baltistan Province if you want CPEC to succeed”

Daily Salaam, October 11, 2017

Imran Nadeem, a Legislative Assembly member warned the government of Pakistan that they must analyse the statement of the US Defence Secretary on CPEC. According to Nadeem, the US has now publicly opposed CPEC and may try its best to derail it. Pakistani rulers, Nadeem noted, should take the serious note of it. The best way to begin in this regard would be to make Gilgit-Baltistan a province and fully integrate it with the rest of country. Nadeem stated that people of the region are demanding to be given full provincial rights since long but Islamabad has failed to listen to these demands and does not pay heed to our legal demands. Sounding pessimist, Nadeem noted that CPEC cannot succeed without making Gilgit-Baltistan a province of Pakistan.

“Satpara Dam and other hydro power projects”

Daily K2, October 17, 2017

Secretary Gilgit-Baltistan recently briefed Senate on the Satpara Dam in Skardu and other power projects in the region. Secretary Gilgit-Baltistan noted that a committee of experts from WAPDA and Gilgit-Baltistan government has been formed to supervise work and finance of the Satpara dam in Skardu. The committee will present its report within two weeks. After the report is submitted, the project would be handed over to the government of Gilgit-Baltistan within six months. The Federal government will bear the cost of the project. However, one has heard about these projects in past too. Many projects were announced but nothing concrete has happened till now. People have now stopped in believing these stories which often do get published in newspapers. In past, work on few projects was started without feasibility study. After years of hard work on such projects, they were finally stopped citing technical problems. A couple of days ago, the Chief Minister also revealed that many projects were halted due to non-availability of workforce. The present government should take these issues into consideration before starting a new project.

“Political Scoring on Taxation policy”

Baad-e-Shimal, October 25, 2017

Taxation policy on Gilgit-Baltistan was imposed by Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP) in 2012. However, presently they are opposing the new taxation policy adopted by the PML-N government both at the centre and in the province. Both PPP and PTI who are ruling in KP and Sindh opposed the Federal government’s decision of giving GB access to the NFC club. These two parties and their local leadership in GB are now opposing the tax policy of the government. One wonders why the PPP’s leadership is opposed to this idea which was first introduced by their own party at the centre. The basic rule of taxation policy is that when a tax is imposed on a particular region, the revenue generated from those taxes is spent on that very region. But constitutionally, Gilgit-Baltistan is not a part of Pakistan. It does not have any representation in any financial institution. More importantly, there is no mechanism available on how to impose and levy tax on GB and also how to return those revenues to GB.
