EDITORS' NOTE

The current (February) issue of Pakistan News Digest (PND) covers important socio-political, security and economic developments in Pakistan during the previous month. The evolving internal as well as regional security landscape in Pakistan has been a cause of concern for the region in particular and the international community as a whole.

The presence of Islamic State's (IS) in Pakistan is not new. However, for the first time, it was discussed with some sense of urgency in Pakistan's Senate during this month. In the second week of February, Director General of Intelligence Bureau informed a Senate Standing Committee on Interior that several militant organisations including Lashkar-e-Jhangvi (LeJ), and Sipah-e-Sahaba Pakistan (SSP), and Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan (TTP) have developed a soft corner for the IS and some of them have even started coordinating with it.

In an interesting move, Counter-Terrorism Department (CTD) in Punjab lodged an FIR in the Gujranwala police station against the four alleged Pathankot attackers and their accomplices based on information received from India. The vernacular media in the country denounced such step taken by termed the lodging of the FIR as a clear demonstration of weakness of the Pakistani state for having succumbed to Indian pressure. However, the FIR, for all its worth, gave a clean chit to Maulana Masood Azhar, the Jaish-e-Mohammad Chief, who was named by India as the mastermind of the attack. Maulana Abdul Aziz, of Lal Masjid fame, who has been under severe criticism from the civil society for backing radical anti-military and ant-state elements like TTP, came out with a public 'pardon' of former military ruler Gen. Pervez Musharraf and others for the Lal Masjid Operation. Nevertheless, the Lal Masjid Shuhda Foundation not only disassociated itself from the Maulana's decision but also termed the pardoning against the spirit of Sharia. He seems to have mellowed down under pressure from the military and civil society. The federal government, especially the Interior ministry has been under tremendous pressure to act against the venom spitting Maulana. However, as of now, the government has not taken any stern action against him.

The apex court of Pakistan nullified the Special Court's decision in treason trial against General Pervez Musharraf. The special court had also ordered inclusion of retired Chief Justice Abdul Hameed Dogar, former Prime Minister Shaukat Aziz and Ex-federal minister Zahid Hamid in the trial for treason.

There is hardly any doubt that Pakistan gives utmost importance to its friendship with China and takes all the steps to allay all the concerns expressed by its all-weather friend. Reports from media this month reconfirmed that Pakistan Army was taking special measures to protect Chinese investments in the country. It has reportedly turned Gwadar into a virtual fortress.

Pakistan joined a 20-nation military maneuver for a military exercise "Thunder of the North" in Saudi Arabia. The military exercise, involving ground, air and naval forces, is going to be the most important military maneuver ever staged in the region. The prime minister and the army chief were supposed to attend the closing ceremony.

NATIONAL POLITICS

Govt to speed up implementation of NAP, The Dawn, February 2<sup>1</sup>

The government is facing internal pressure for taking a series of aggressive steps for ratcheting up the pace of implementation of National Action Plan (NAP) on countering-terrorism and extremism. [...] At a meeting held at the Prime Minister House for reviewing the progress of National Action Plan, PM Nawaz Sharif emphasised that “successful implementation of NAP is an imperative for everyone”. He said: “Terrorism will be eliminated from every nook and corner of the country.” [...] A general perception in the military is that half a dozen elements of NAP which had been entrusted to the army and Operation Zarb-i-Azb were progressing well, whereas areas assigned to civilians were lagging behind, particularly madressah reforms, terror financing, banned organisations and hate speech/extremist propaganda.

Peaceful protests if demands not met: Imran Khan, The News, February 8<sup>2</sup>

Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf (PTI) Chairman Imran Khan on Sunday (February 7) put forth five demands to the government and threatened to launch ‘peaceful protests’ if these demands were not fulfilled. Addressing a public meeting here, Imran Khan demanded that management of PIA and Steel Mills must be reformed; petrol and kersone oil prices be reduced further by at least Rs5 and diesel by Rs20; tax payers money which he claimed was plundered stashed away overseas be brought back to Pakistan; three new taxes on electricity be withdrawn and its prices be reduced by Rs3 per unit; and salaries of poor workers of Steel Mills be released immediately. The PTI chief warned that in case these demands were not his party would be left with no other option but to take to the streets and stage peaceful protests.

Maulana Aziz ‘pardons’ Gen Musharraf, The Dawn, February 8<sup>3</sup>

Maulana Abdul Aziz, who has been under increasing pressure in recent weeks, announced on Sunday (February 7) that he had forgiven former military ruler Gen Pervez Musharraf and the other characters involved in the Lal Masjid operation. He was accompanied by family members, including his wife Umme Hassan and Haroon Ghazi, the son of his late brother – Abdul Rasheed Ghazi – who was killed in the 2007 military operation against the mosque, at Sunday’s (February 7) press conference. He said that he and his family forgave Gen

Musharraf and others “for the sake of peace in the country”, adding that he had wanted to forgive the military ruler far earlier, but it took him time to convince all of his family members. But, as he pointed out, this did not mean that Gen Musharraf was cleared of all wrongdoing in the Lal Masjid operation case, which is currently pending before the Supreme Court. “I cannot forgive the blood of others who were killed during the operation, because they don’t belong to my family; only their relatives can forgive,” he said, adding that Umme Hassan wanted to wait until the cases against us had been decided to dispel the impression that they had reconciled.

Aziz’s ‘pardon’ to Musharraf termed against Sharia, The Dawn, February 9<sup>4</sup>
Lal Masjid Shuhada Foundation has termed Maulana Abdul Aziz’s decision to withdraw the murder case against former president Pervez Musharraf against the spirit of Sharia. The foundation held a meeting in Lal Masjid on Monday (February 9) and declared that Maulana Aziz had imposed a ‘clergy dictatorship’ on his family to hide the tyranny of a military dictator. [...]“This decision is against Sharia and we would like Maulana Abdul Aziz to take it back,” Mr Asad said, adding: “Maulana Aziz is talking about the implementation of Sharia in the country but his own acts are contrary to the principles of Sharia.”

Draft Hindu marriage law crosses first hurdle, The Dawn, February 9<sup>5</sup>
After decades of filibustering, a National Assembly committee on Monday (February 9) approved a draft law on Hindu marriages, paving the way for registering marriages in the minuscule religious minority of Pakistan. [...]Committee chairman Chaudhry Mahmood Bashir Virk regretted the long-drawn tactical delay in framing family law for the Hindu community. “It was unbecoming of us Muslims in general and the political leaders in particular. We were required to facilitate the legislation, not obstruct it,” he said while talking to Dawn. “If we 99pc of the population are afraid of 1pc, we need to look deep inside what we claim to be and what we are,” he added.

IDPs to be compensated for damaged houses, The Dawn, February 9<sup>6</sup>
The government has completed the survey of damage caused to the houses of internally displaced persons (IDPs) of Federally Administered Tribal Areas (Fata) because of fighting there. The affected people will be compensated according to the extent of damage. According to the government decision, those IDPs whose houses have been destroyed will be provided Rs 400,000 and the owners of damaged houses will get Rs 110,000. The decision was taken at a meeting of the Senate functional committee on less developed areas on Monday (February 8). The committee was informed that an amount of Rs19.9 billion had already been paid to affected people and about 80 per cent IDPs had returned to their homes.

Aziz provided security by PPP govt: Nisar, The Dawn, February 17<sup>7</sup>

Interior Minister Chaudhry Nisar Ali Khan on Tuesday (February 16), in an implicit response to Pakistan People's Party (PPP) lawmakers' criticism of his 'inaction' against Lal Masjid cleric Abdul Aziz, alleged it was the previous PPP-led government which had 'provided Aziz security guards.' In a press conference in Islamabad, the interior minister said no one was above the law "but the government cannot arrest someone just to appease a section of society." "I never said that there is no FIR registered against Abdul Aziz, he had at least 31 cases registered against him," said the minister, adding that "out of these, 12 were of a serious nature."

NAB 'falls in line' after PM's criticism, The Dawn, February 18<sup>8</sup>

[...] On Wednesday (February 17), NAB spokesperson Nawazish Ali Asim issued an official statement that vowed to improve the accountability process in line with the PM's criticism and directives. The statement claimed that the government was not interfering with NAB's work and that the bureau would act upon the PM's advice. "The non-interference policy of the government has helped NAB become an independent organisation and it respects the opinion of Prime Minister Mohammad Nawaz Sharif," the spokesperson said. [...] The PM had lashed out at NAB on Tuesday (February 16) and threatened to clip its powers over what he termed "harassment of government officers".

Nawaz Sharif received money from Laden, The Pashtun Times, February 29<sup>9</sup>

A new book authored by the wife a former operative of Pakistan's spy agency has once again made the claim that Nawaz Sharif received money from al-Qaeda leader Osama Bin Laden. The book, Khalid Khawaja: Shaheed-i-Aman, is authored by Shamama Khalid, the wife of former ISI operative Khalid Khawaja. "Chief of PML-N Mian Mohammad Nawaz Sharif received funding from Osama Bin Laden, founder of Al-Qaeda, to contest elections against Benazir Bhutto's led Pakistan People's Party (PPP) after the end of Zia regime," the book states, as per the report Pakistan's Dawn news agency. The book claims that Mr Sharif's pledge of introducing an Islamic system attracted Khawaja as well as Bin Laden. But even though the Al Qaeda head honcho funded Nawaz Sharif heavily, the latter backtracked from all his promises after coming into power.

190 seminaries being run on foreign funding: Nisar, The Nation, February 25<sup>10</sup>
Federal Minister for Interior and Narcotics Chaudhry Nisar Ali Khan on Wednesday (February 24) said that 190 madrassas in the country are being run on foreign funding. In a written reply to the National Assembly, the minister said that 147 foreign funded seminaries are operating in Punjab, 30 in Balochistan, 7 in KP while 06 in Sindh province. Answering a question about total number of seminaries in the country, he said that total of 717 madrassas existed in the whole country while number of registered Madrassas in the country is 699. He said that total of 72 unregistered seminaries were closed down in Sindh, 2 in Punjab, 167 in Sindh and 13 in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province. The National Assembly was informed that 2,471 cases had been registered for possessing hate speech material while 9,945 cases had been registered for misuse of loudspeaker under the National action Plan.

PROVINCIAL POLITICS

Charsadda varsity rejects advice for VC's removal, The Dawn, February 2<sup>11</sup>
The Bacha Khan University Charsadda's administration on Monday (February 1) 'condemned' the government's fact-finding committee on the Jan 20 terrorist attack in the varsity for holding it responsible for security lapses on campus. It also rejected as regrettable the committee's advice for the removal of the university's vice-chancellor over the attack, which claimed 21 lives.

SHC asks Sindh govt about NAP, The Express Tribune, February 4<sup>12</sup>
The Sindh High Court (SHC) has asked the provincial government to give details on where the additional special courts, proposed under the National Action Plan (NAP), will be set up before it nominates judges to head them. The provincial apex committee had proposed 10 new anti-terrorism courts (ATCs) to be established in Karachi to 'swiftly' deal with the trials of terrorists. [...]The number of the ATCs in the city was increased from five to 10 on the directives of the Supreme Court to effectively curb terrorism, target killings, extortion, kidnappings and other heinous crimes.

KP accountability chief resigns in protest, The Dawn, February 11<sup>13</sup>

Retired Lt Gen Mohammad Hamid Khan, the director general of the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Ehtesab Commission, resigned on Wednesday (February 10) in protest against promulgation of an ordinance by the provincial government that drastically amended the Ehtesab Act of 2015. The ordinance, promulgated on Tuesday (February 9), makes approval of the five-member commission mandatory for arresting a suspect and reduces the maximum period of physical custody of a suspect from 45 to 15 days. The ordinance provides that no legislator will be arrested by the commission without prior intimation to the Senate's chairman or the speaker of the national or provincial assembly, as the case may be. Similarly the chief secretary will have to be informed before the arrest of a civil servant.

EDITORIALS AND OPINIONS

K-P's curriculum: Khan's real fight, The Express Tribune, February 4<sup>14</sup>

Imran Khan and company are getting ready to stage street protests again. The electoral fraud saga refuses to fade from Khan's narrative. "I will continue fighting the forces of status quo," he insists. While he draws derision from his detractors due to his fixation on what many consider is his 'quest for power', he faces a minefield of issues in the province his party is ruling. One of the battles he faces, and which all parties need to fight on a war-footing, is on the education front. This becomes even more pressing if a recent private review of some of the textbooks being taught in Khyber-Pakhtunkhwa's (K-P) schools is any indicator. [...]The second and more critical front that Khan needs to take into account is that of the kind of material being taught in K-P's textbooks. [...]Consider what the last chapter in the class five Islamiyat textbook has to say. It lauds conquerors Muhammad bin Qasim and Mahmood Ghaznavi for their "occupation" of the subcontinent, and accuses Hindus of "plotting to subjugate and enslave Muslims of the subcontinent upon gaining independence from the British". But "Muslims considered enslavement to Hindus worse than to the British" (pp58-60).

The Balochistan Narrative, Editorial, The Nation, February 4<sup>15</sup>

There is no way around this fact; Balochistan, despite being the largest, remains the least developed, least secure, and sadly least news-worthy of Pakistan's provinces. Yet for the most part, this alarming fact rarely becomes part of the parliament's conversations. A veritable media gag enforced by attacks on journalists, and continued presence of militancy and the armed forces has kept the province in the dark. It is commendable whenever initiative is taken to right this wrong, and the National Seminar on Prospects of Peace and Prosperity in Balochistan must be given plaudits. And while a change in narrative is no substitute for concrete policymaking, it definitely is a start. [...] The Chief of Army Staff began on a positive tone, admitting – which is a first for the armed forces – that “politics of violence” have hurt Balochistan, and the use of force brings nothing but destruction. [...] For the foreseeable future the security state in Balochistan is here to stay because the narrative of unnamed and uncounted ‘foreign foes’ is still in force. There was no indication in Raheel Sharif’s address that the restrictions around the province are going to be relaxed and the media is going to be allowed access. Without this, alleged progress cannot be independently monitored and allegations of human rights violations cannot be investigated. Physical development alone cannot lead to progress, a culture of accountability and open discourse needs to be cultivated too.

Above the law, Zahid Hussain, The Dawn, February 10<sup>16</sup>

[...] The case of Maulana Aziz is yet another example of the selective use of the National Action Plan that has long lost its way. With no less than the federal interior minister often defending him one cannot blame the security agencies for their inaction. [...] It is not just about Maulana Abdul Aziz and his Lal Masjid brigade, but the way the National Action Plan is apparently being set aside to protect certain extremist elements. Most banned organisations have continued to operate under new banners, in Punjab particularly.

What NAP missed, Rauf K. Khattak, The Dawn, February 17<sup>17</sup>

[...] There is one grievous omission from the measures which NAP outlined. It is social and economic justice and equality between classes and regions. Why is it that there are so many men who blindly follow the merchants of death, to do the dirty work for them in exchange for money? The answer is simple: they have no stake in this life and in this country. [...] Make an economic and regional profile of all those that we have arrested, hanged, killed and are fighting against and only one dark picture will emerge — a pathetic, miserable figure. He talks about great ‘jihad’, Islam in danger and says that anyone who does not take up arms in order to establish ‘God’s law’ in this country and drive away all ‘infidels’ from Muslim lands, is a kafir. [...] NAP is indulging in administrative and military whip-cracking. This is fine but we have been using these methods for the last decade. Our wound is large and cannot be covered by band-aids. Where is the statesmanship?

FOREIGN POLICY

Pakistan to blame: Imran Khan, The Express Tribune, February 4<sup>18</sup>

In an exclusive interview given to Voice of America (VOA), Pakistan Tehreek-e-Insaf chief Imran Khan has emphasised the need for both Pakistan and Afghanistan to remove tensions in bilateral ties and build mutual trust to assist the reconciliation process. “I am very sad that the relationship is not good and I am also sad to say that Pakistan is to blame. We did not have consistent policies dealing with Afghanistan and then the interference in the past in affairs of Afghans has caused a lot of bad blood,” he said. However, Khan was optimistic that things would get better between the neighbours. [...] Urging Afghanistan’s Taliban to negotiate a peaceful resolution to its conflict with the Kabul government, Khan said, “They (the Taliban) must come to the table and they must resolve this dispute through talks and negotiations. War is never a solution. In fact, war leads to unintended consequences just like in Iraq and Syria.”

Talks to help end terrorism: Afghan envoy, The Dawn, February 11<sup>19</sup>

The newly-appointed Afghan Consul General, Dr Abdullah Waheed Poyan, has said that Pakistan and Afghanistan need to put in concerted efforts for restoration of sustainable peace in the region. He told a press conference at the Afghan consulate on Wednesday (February 10) that the ongoing quadrilateral talks would help end terrorism in both the countries and would pave the way for lasting peace in the region. [...] “Afghanistan wants equal relations with all countries,” he said, adding being immediate neighbour his country had social, cultural, political and religious relations with Pakistan. He said that both the countries needed to strengthen bilateral relations in all fields, especially trade and commerce.

India's defence build-up, The Express Tribune, February 25<sup>20</sup>

Pakistan on Thursday (February 25) said that the defence buildup pursued by India will disturb stability in the region, Radio Pakistan reported. At a weekly news briefing in Islamabad, Foreign Office spokesperson Nafees Zakaria while raising concern over the exceptional treatment being meted out to New Delhi by the Nuclear Supplier Group said, “Pakistan seeks peace in the region and is therefore against any arms race.” Zakaria categorically rejected any obstacles in the way of Pakistan-India foreign secretary level talks.

EDITORIALS AND OPINION

Talking 'talks', Editorial, The News, February 8<sup>21</sup>

Another meeting to push forward the Afghan reconciliation process has ended with yet another call to the Afghan Taliban to join the talks. It is clear that all actors participating in the talks are now tired of the cycle of violence that has impacted life in Afghanistan for the last decade and a half. However, the third meeting of the Quadrilateral Coordination Group, which includes Afghanistan, Pakistan, China and the United States, seems to be making little progress in terms of involving the most important actor: the Afghan Taliban. After the meeting on Saturday (February 6), the group announced that it was hopeful that some Afghan Taliban groups would be able to join the next round of talks on February 23. [...] While it is clear that the Afghan conflict needs a political settlement, the four-party talks seem to be going nowhere in particular. Back-channel efforts seem to be at a standstill for now. This work needs to be revived before the next meeting of the group. Otherwise, the QCG will end up as yet more talk of 'talks'.

Decentralised chaos, Syed Talat Husain, The News, February 8<sup>22</sup>

[...]The Taliban movement, despite its projection to the contrary, is not a unified entity. Internal rivalries have destroyed harmony. [...]The advent of the Islamic State has created another centre of power within Afghanistan's combat zones, splitting up resources and breaking down old loyalties. [...]For Islamabad, Afghanistan's expanding disorder raises red flags – which won't be lowered by being a central figure in the talks. Even the talks create tough problems for Islamabad. The international expectation is that the Taliban are just a phone call away from their handlers. They will do so if the ISI says so. This is not the case. The Taliban, now factionalised and spread deep into Afghanistan's badlands of war and local conflict, aren't sitting by the phone waiting for their next orders from Aabpara. They are busy adjusting to new realities that they know matter more to them than what Islamabad's interests are. Unfortunately, Pakistan's Afghanistan managers continue to pretend that they have 'cards' in their hands, which in reality is little more than bombastic bluff designed to generate impact and to 'stay relevant' to the dialogue process. This egregious deception is now hanging around our neck like a heavy stone that we can neither lift nor take off. What can we do then? We can start by admitting that we cannot 'deliver' the Taliban.

A road map for Afghanistan, Editorial, The Dawn, February 9<sup>23</sup>

[...]Now it appears that talking and fighting will take place simultaneously, giving the Afghan government and the QCG some additional leverage at the negotiating table — or at least not losing further ground to the Taliban at the outset. Also sensible is the reported phased approach to a peace process. [...]For a year now, it has been clear that the Pakistani state is committed to helping create an intra-Afghan peace process and has wanted to work with the Afghan government to address mutual security concerns. The Afghan side should respond with equanimity when obstacles in the peace process appear, as they will inevitably.

Diplomatic Agenda 2016, Editorial, The Nation, February 9<sup>24</sup>

With its third year in power nearly coming to an end, the PML-N government's foreign policy looks to remain unchanged in the coming year. An internal document circulated by the foreign secretary reveals that improved bilateral relations with the neighbour are to dominate the agenda in 2016. However, given the cyclical nature of the relationship between the two countries, the Foreign Office will have to be more effective than it has been so far. Indeed, it will have to steer clear of giving in to the temptation of accusing India of misdeeds - as Sartaj Aziz did in 2015 - whenever the eastern neighbour does the same. The cancellation of the NSA level talks following Pathankot is yet another example of how easy it is for talks to get derailed. [...]The current impasse however, is by no means insurmountable. But given that Pakistan's findings from the SIT constituted to investigate Masood Azhar's connection to Pathankot have come out negative, India is not likely to agree to holding dialogue just yet. The Foreign Office needs to be prepared for the worst, and must start making contingency plans.

MILITARY AFFAIRS

Nine-Zero in-charge presented in court, The Express Tribune, February 4<sup>25</sup>

Rangers have arrested the security in-charge of MQM headquarters Nine Zero. The paramilitary force said that Minhaj Qazi has confessed to have killed KESC managing director Shahid Hamid and numerous other people. "The Rangers have arrested a notorious militant wing's most wanted criminal – Minhaj Qazi alias Asad," said a Rangers statement issued on Wednesday (February 3). "He (Qazi), during initial interrogations has also revealed several target killings including a murder of managing director of KESC Shahid Hamid."

Terrorist Abu Abdullah hanged, The News, February 4<sup>26</sup>

Key facilitator of Tehreek-e-Taliban Pakistan, terrorist Bilal Ahmed alias Abu Abdullah was executed in Kohat Central Jail early on Thursday (February 4) morning. Bilal s/o Faiz Ahmed was arrested two years back from his native village Suraj in Sialkot. Bilal aka Abu Abdullah was sentenced to death by military court Kohat after he was found guilty. Security sources said he was key facilitator of TTP and involved in terrorist activities against Pak Army across the country.

COAS for coordinated global response against terror, The Nation, February 5<sup>27</sup>

Army Chief General Raheel Sharif yesterday said that terrorism was a global phenomenon and required a coordinated global response. Chief of the Army Staff (COAS) made these remarks during his visit to National Counter-Terrorism Training Centre (NCTC), Pabbi, KPK and witnessed Pak – Sri Lanka – Maldives Trilateral Exercise 'Eagle Dash-I'. Two weeks-long exercise was focused on counter-terrorism operations and sharing of field combat experience of three armed forces. Owing to successes in Operation Zarb-e-Azb, a large number of friendly countries have requested Pakistan Army to organise training for their troops in Pakistan's state-of-the-art Counter-Terrorism Training Centre. Pakistan Army has already conducted joint exercises with Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, China and Jordan to enhance its combat efficiency. Pakistani troops have also imparted counter-terrorism training to police and other law enforcement agencies of all four provinces, Gilgit-Baltistan and Azad Kashmir.

Chinese Investment: Army leaves little to chance, The Dawn, February 9<sup>28</sup>

A heavy police presence, guarded convoys, new checkpoints and troop reinforcements have turned parts of the southern port city of Gwadar into a fortress, as Pakistan's military seeks to protect billions of dollars of Chinese investment. ## EDITORIALS AND OPINIONS

Exit the General?, Kunwar Khuldune Shahid, The Nation, February 4<sup>39</sup>

Pakistan Army Chief General Raheel Sharif merely saying that he would retire on his due date is a justifiable cause for celebration in the country. It's believed to be the biggest triumph for democracy since August 31, 2014 when the Army Chief generously decided in the corps commanders' meeting not to bring down the guillotine that had been raised through the joint PTI-PAT expeditions in the capital. Since decapitating democracy no longer had the backing of US, or China, judicious as always the establishment settled for amputation by reaffirming control over the foreign policy. [...] General Sharif's dedication to successful talks between Kabul and Taliban, over the past couple of years, has been second only to his zealous leadership of Operation Zarb-e-Azb. By accommodating the Taliban in Kabul, the Pakistani establishment would safeguard democracy in the neighbourhood as well. [...]The establishment's plan is simple: accommodate Taliban in Kabul to parry away Indian influence and in turn curb terrorism in Pakistan. The anti-establishment conspiracy theorists would be told that this counter-terrorism policy is the mid-90s brainchild of democracy's poster child Benazir Bhutto, and her interior minister Naseerullah Babar. Shielding Hafiz Saeed, Zaki-ur-Rehman Lakhvi and Azhar Masood is obviously a part of the bigger picture to secure Pakistan.

NAB and the Army, Editorial, The Nation, February 25<sup>40</sup>

[...]On February 22, a former official from the Defence Housing Authority (DHA), retired Lt Col Tariq Kamal – who had been arrested in relation to the case – asked NAB to investigate whether General Kayani was involved in “irregularities/misappropriation” related to DHA Valley contracts or whether “his name was used by the decision makers just to benefit Bahria Town”. [...] Logic dictates that the former chief be investigated if his brothers are involved, but under present law there seems to be confusion over whether NAB can pursue the case or not. One panel of opinion – composed almost exclusively of embattled politicians and retired army officers – believe that NAB cannot investigate cases which involve the armed forces. There is authority behind this; financial corruption in the armed forces is dealt under the army acts of 1958. However, there is strong precedent for exceptions, and considering that NAB curtailment is on the card, it is imperative that the NAB gets to investigate this highly damaging case.

Pak shelves plan to privatise power firms, The Express Tribune, February 4<sup>41</sup>

Avoiding another Kalabagh, Shah Rukh Hashmi, Daily Times, February 22<sup>49</sup>

[...]The CPEC is the result of the dealings between two sovereign governments, not a product of para-diplomacy between China and the provincial government of Punjab. [...]Owing to the strategic depth of Pakistan, eastern alignment would be volatile and vulnerable to the regional actor from the east. The advocates of this route point out the same regarding western alignment but the pragmatic gestures from Iran nullify this argument. Additionally, western route, like the Indus Highway, would be another line of communication and connectivity between the units of the federation, thereby empowering the centre's ability to be more connected with the federating unites. Unfair distribution and encapsulation of the major share in one province will have negative consequences for Pakistan by invoking resentment among the smaller units. Right to development is a constitutional right of all the units of Pakistan and deliberate attempts to snub this legitimate concern of stakeholders will provoke a wave of criticism, making the CPEC another Kalabagh.

Religious extremism is just one strain of a virus that is not limited to the Islamic world, said chairman, Pakistan People's Party, Bilawal Bhutto Zardari. He was addressing a moot organised by the United States Institute of Peace in Washington. [...] Bilawal mentioning that all forms of religious extremism are a serious threat to the nation said his mother in her final election campaign and her posthumously published book "Reconciliation," had laid out a road map to combat religious extremism through reconciliation, democracy, social justice, and a new Marshall Plan. [...] He also alleged that extremism in Pakistan was founded by opponents of his grandfather Zulfikar Ali Bhutto and that world then had myopically funded his policy because of Pakistan's strategic importance in the first Afghan War. Bilawal regretted that world also ignored his mother Benazir Bhutto in the 1980s when she warned that supplying arms, training and support to the mujahadeen to fight the Soviets had created a Frankenstein that would come back to haunt us. "Many declared these men freedom fighters and dubbed them the moral equivalent of George Washington," he added. "After 9/11, again the international community ignored BB when she warned that we must not run with the hare and hunt with the hound," he said, mentioning that supporting dictatorship on the one hand while preaching democracy with the other was counter-productive.

[...] We ended 2015 on a high note; and the terrorists started 2016 on a high. In 2015, we prevented an APS-like attack, the terrorists pulled off another on the Bacha Khan University in 2016. [...] A tough choice confronts Pakistan: is the country ready to act against militant groups on its soil that are involved in cross-border militancy? More importantly, what are we going to do about: a) Pakistani militant groups like the TTP, Jamaat-ul-Ahrar, and Lashkar-e-Islam based in Afghanistan; and b) transnational groups like Al-Qaeda and the Islamic State's Afghanistan affiliate, IS-Khorasan which operate on both sides of the Pak-Afghan border? [...] Rather than closing down educational institutions it is time to shut down terror sanctuaries without differentiating between 'good' and 'bad' Taliban. Rather than arming our teachers we need to disarm the militants.

Quetta targeted again, Editorial, The Dawn, February 7<sup>64</sup>

Quetta was once again attacked yesterday, this time a bomb killing Frontier Corps personnel near the district courts and adjacent to the so-called red zone in the city. That militants can strike in the heart of Quetta is worrying enough; that they could belong to any of several groups and affiliates is more worrying. While the banned TTP has quickly claimed responsibility for the attack, there is a fair amount of uncertainty at this stage — the TTP and breakaway factions have in recent months taken to claiming any attack that can be fit into the narrative of the Taliban's war against Pakistan. While Baloch separatists or, in the security establishment's favoured parlance, the so-called foreign hand could also likely be behind the bombing on Saturday (February 6), the incident has raised a very familiar set of questions.

Clean chit to JeM chief, The Nation, February 9<sup>67</sup>

The Pak-India relations are once again on the razor edge as New Delhi has refused to accept Islamabad's clean chit to Jaish-e-Mohammed chief Maulana Masood Azhar in the Pathankot attack case. In a second report shared with India, Pakistan told that the JeM chief was not found involved in the terror attack. In the first report, Pakistan had informed India the Pakistani cell phone numbers given as evidence had no record in Pakistan. [...]Pakistan is mulling to send a special investigating team to Pathankot in consultation with the government of India for further investigations. A senior government official told The Nation, India was perturbed over the Pakistan's assertion that the JeM chief had nothing to do with the Pathankot attack.

Pakistan seeks early date for talks, The Express Tribune, February 19<sup>68</sup>

Pakistan on Thursday (February 18) sought an early date for the crucial foreign secretary-level talks with India after the latter's envoy recently suggested that the meeting was not conditional to progress in the Pathankot attack investigation. Speaking at his weekly news briefing, Foreign Office (FO) spokesperson Muhammad Nafees Zakaria said Pakistan had noted the policy statement given by India's High Commissioner Gautam Bambawale. "In view of the statement, it is our view that the date of the foreign secretary-level talks should now be decided as early as possible," he told reporters.

Pakistani investigation team likely to visit India, The Dawn, February 20<sup>70</sup>

A team of Pakistani investigators is likely to visit India next month for collecting evidence relating to alleged involvement of Jaish-e-Mohammad (JeM) terrorists in the Pathankot airbase attack. "The investigation team's visit is expected," a senior diplomat told Dawn on Friday (February 19), adding that dates for the visit were yet to be finalised. The registration of FIR by the Counter-Terrorism Department of Punjab police has, however, paved the way for the visit of the six-member investigation team constituted by Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif weeks after the attack on the airbase on Jan 2.

Pursuing policy of good ties with India: PM, The Nation, February 25<sup>71</sup>

Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif has said that Pakistan's policy of establishing good relations with all its neighbours, including India, is aimed at giving boost to the regional trade for the collective good of the people of these countries. Talking to Indian High Commissioner Gautam Bambawale who called on him at PM House yesterday, Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif extended a very warm welcome to the newly-appointed Indian high commissioner and expressed confidence that Gautam Bambawale will work to bring the two countries closer. The prime minister said it was Pakistan's policy to pursue good relations with all its neighbours including India. "Our policy is aimed at bringing economic stability in the region. The mutual cooperation between the two states can lead to numerous benefits in socio-economic uplift of both the countries," he added.

them cruelly. Pakistan also entered its army in Kashmir in order to save the Muslims from the cruelty of Indian army. Kashmiri Muslims supported Pak army completely. The total liberation of Kashmir was near but India involved UNO in this matter and requested to stop the war so that Kashmiris should be given the right of self-determination. The UNO guaranteed a referendum after evacuating it from the armies of India and Pakistan. India made lame excuses and did not evacuate Kashmir. Indian stubbornness and obstinacy is a major obstacle in referendum. [...]Kashmir issue is alive after passing 60 years. It is only because of the spirit of Jihad of Kashmiri Muslims. In 2014 the fake elections were held in occupied Kashmir once more. The ruling party BJP was defeated badly. Its candidates were contesting on 87 seats but won only 25 seats.

Kashmir Day, Editorial, The Nation, February 5<sup>73</sup>

Today marks the 26 years that Pakistan has been expressing its support and unity with the people of Indian-occupied Kashmir by dedicating February 5th as Kashmir day. [...]Ironically Kashmir Day was first observed in 1990 on call of Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif, who was the opposition leader and chief minister of Punjab at the time. He appealed for a nationwide strike to protest against the Indian occupation of Kashmir and called for people to pray for the Kashmiri freedom movement's success. Here we are twenty-six years and three terms in office later; our PM has failed at dispensing freedom to the people of Kashmir. Passionate speeches are delivered at international forums, third party interventions are called for but the opposing party is nowhere near even agreeing to come to the negotiating table.

Indian objections to F-16 sale, Editorial, The Dawn, February 19<sup>74</sup>

The sale of F-16 aircraft has appeared to annoy India more than it helps Pakistan's overall counter-insurgency efforts. It should not. But the very fact that it does — that New Delhi appears to feel it necessary to protest the American sale of F-16 aircraft to Pakistan — demonstrates the extent to which the Pak-India relationship needs to be protected from reactionaries in India. [...]The objections to the sale of F-16s to Pakistan are not the only recent Indian intervention. It is fairly well established that Indian authorities attempted to — and perhaps succeeded in— temporarily blocking the sale of JF-17 aircraft to Sri Lanka. There too the Indian intervention was neither bashful nor remotely principled. It was simply a case of leveraging influence to ensure a politically desirable — if short-sighted — outcome.

The Pathankot FIR, Editorial, Daily Times, February 21<sup>75</sup>

It is welcome news that Pakistan has initiated a formal probe into the involvement of the miscreants who mounted a brazen assault on the Pathankot Airbase in Indian Punjab on January 2, 2015. [...] Though the finger of suspicion is being pointed at members of the JeM, led by Chief Maulana Masood Azhar, for their involvement in the attack, their names have not been included in the FIR due to inadequate evidence. The registration of the FIR alone will not make a marked difference. A thorough investigation should be conducted to find the culprits and take the case to its logical end. If solid evidence proves the involvement of the JeM chief in the across-border attack, he must be brought to trial in accordance with the law. Furthermore, if the security agencies succeed in finding and prosecuting the offenders, it will pave the way towards the normalisation of relations between India and Pakistan.

Avoiding an arms race, Editorial, Daily Times, February 26<sup>76</sup>

[...] The NCA declared that India's growing development of weapons would have "adverse ramifications for peace and security" in the region and asserted that it would take all possible measures to make national security robust, including maintaining its "full spectrum deterrence". However, this assertion was qualified by a denunciation of an "arms race" with India, and the NCA once again proposed a Regional Strategic Restraint Regime that was tabled to no avail for the first time in 1998. India, however, has been reluctant to embrace a regional mechanism, and the lack of such a regional architecture to prevent the pile up of weapons has been decried by security experts. The NCA also raised concerns over the west's antipathy to India's nuclear activity while bemoaning what was implied to be a disproportionate focus on Pakistan's nuclear programme. The developments in India were described as upsetting the balance of power, resultantly exacerbating Pakistan's security dilemma. Nonetheless, the NCA re-emphasised Pakistan's desire for establishing the Strategic Restraint Regime in South Asia and the inescapable need of a meaningful and sustained comprehensive dialogue process for resolution of all outstanding disputes, ushering in an era of peace and prosperity in the region.

INDIA-PAKISTAN RELATIONS

India got the answer, Editorial, Daily Jasarat, February 9.<sup>77</sup>

Pakistan has informed India about the investigation report which India has sought after Pathankot attack. Pakistan did not out rightly reject the Indian allegations but asked for the evidence. The evidence sent by India were not enough and nothing was found out which could indicate the involvement of Masood Azhar. During the investigation period Pakistan had restricted the movement of Masood Azhar and other leaders of his organization. After receiving the answer through this report the Indian leaders have remained silent and surely they might be busy in constructing another conspiracy. May be within couple of days they will insist Pakistan to do more. They have been doing same with the chief of Jamat-ud-dawa, Hafiz Mohammad Sayeed who was given a clean chit after judicial investigation. But Indian leaders are still demanding action against Hafiz Sayeed. Given the track record of Indian leaders, we believe that none of their allegation should be taken seriously and whatever they say should be thrown back to them.

The attack on Pathankot airbase was not the first in India. The pressure put on Pakistan after the attack by India was not something new either. [...]As usual India started a malicious campaign and tried to put pressure on Pakistan but unfortunately our present government behaved in a way that whole nation feels ashamed. Registering an FIR against unknown persons in Pakistan with regard to Pathankot attack was basically for the sake of friendship with India. Indian sponsored terrorism in Pakistan is going on unabated which the government of Pakistan has officially announced several times. Everyone is aware of this and because of their interference, situation is very tense. But has Pakistan protested and has India ever registered any FIR in India for the attacks in Pakistan? But Pakistan has shown the weakness and has done something which is a sign of humiliation for whole Pakistan. For the sake of friendship with India the politicians have made Pakistan a colony of India.

Kashmir and international community got the impression that Kashmiris have accepted the Indian rule. Modi government is also trying to strengthen the occupation of Kashmir but there is no need to be scared because the freedom movement is very strong and stands on its own legs. However it is high time that Pakistan begin to support Kashmiris in this movement. The policy of calling Mujahideen Terrorists should be rejected now. The current situation of Parvez Musharaf should be a lesson for all political leaders. During his time he did everything for India but what has India done in return. Have they stopped interfering in Pakistan? The government in Pakistan should not pay attention to what India says about Mujahideen so that our future is safe and secure.

Nawaz weakened Pakistan's stand on Pathankot, Daily Ummat, February 24.<sup>80</sup> The renowned legal experts and foreign policy giants believe that Nawaz Sharif succumbed to Indian pressure and thus weakened Pakistan's stand on Pathankot issue. Registering an FIR in Gojranwala, Nawaz government conveyed to the world that there is Pakistani hand behind terrorism in India. Without enough and solid evidences they should not have registered an FIR. The senior Supreme Court lawyer, Owais Ahmad Khan, told Ummat that involving Pakistan in Pathankot case is wrong. [...]Former diplomat Rustam Shah said that there is no doubt that FIR was registered under pressure. He further said that there are chances that special interrogation team of Pakistan will visit Pathankot to investigate the matter. In return certainly Indian team will also visit Pakistan and if they demanded Hafiz Sayeed and Masood Azhar then what answer will Pakistanis give.

Afghanistan. For this purpose the Quadrilateral coordination group was formed. Out of these four countries if America shows some sincerity and seriousness, stability and peace can return to Afghanistan. The Indian presence and intervention in Afghanistan has to end and only America can do that very easily. If America does not show any seriousness then these talks are doomed to fail.

[...]For the reconciliation between Taliban and Afghan government some important steps need to be taken. Firstly, all groups should be allowed to participate in talks. [...]Secondly, both sides should agree on ceasefire. All violent activities should be halted from both sides. Thirdly, America should desist from provoking Taliban. It is true that the key for peace in Afghanistan lies not with Ashraf Ghani but with America. Fourthly, Ashraf Ghani should keep eye on all those elements within establishment who have direct contacts with New Delhi, who are paid by Afghanistan and serve Indian interests. The peace in Afghanistan is not in the interests of India because if there is peace in Afghanistan and relations between Taliban and Afghan government are not sour, then India have to close all those training camps at Pak-Afghan border. In those training camps Baloch separatists are trained and attacks in various cities of Pakistan is planned.

INTERNAL SECURITY SITUATION

External and internal help, Syed Adnan Kareemi, Daily Jang, February 9.<sup>83</sup>

After every tragedy we put the blame on the shoulders of our enemy. There are some internal limitations as well. We were busy in blame game after Bacha Khan University attack and the attack on Jinnah Road in Quetta took us by surprise. In this attack 10 people including security personnel and 40 were injured. These attacks are testing our resolve as Balochistan and Quetta are important topics for media. [...]There is no doubt that support for Baloch separatists is coming from external sources. The vulnerable and poverty-stricken people of Balochistan do not hesitate in picking up weapons who is being exploited in the garb of rights and eventually made a terrorist. The neighboring country is playing a dominant role in destabilizing Pakistan. They are adopting a "use and Throw" policy which has been proved time and again. They change their agents but their agenda has never changed, which is to undermine the sovereignty of Pakistan.

Houses were razed in Teertaj and siyahgazi. In Goristani village houses were burned down with all cattle inside. The BSO spokesperson said that government is trying to crush the Baloch liberation movement by killing its leaders and razing their houses. The BSO spokesperson further said that last week a school teacher was abducted in Turbat by provincial authorities and after some days his dead body was thrown away. Moreover two days ago another dead body was recovered who was identified as Yasir S/O Showkat Sehrai who was picked up by army from Mushkay on September 13, 2013.
